You may have heard of a Gin Rickey, but you've probably never heard of Joe. "The Rickey" can be traced back to Colonel Joe Rickey, a lobbyist and a political "fixer" in Washington D.C., who never drank his whiskey straight. He made the eponymous drink his own by adding a lime to his "mornin's morning," a daily dose of Bourbon with lump ice and sparkling water.

Joe Rickey became a popular figure in both politics and at his favorite bar, Shoomaker's Saloon, where it was rumored that people began to tell the bartender "I'll have a Joe Rickey." Some people are born into fame; others achieve it. But celebrity is thrust upon a select few. Among the latter is our friend Col. Joe Rickey.

MACALLAN 25yr

This expression of a mature single-malt scotch is aged in high quality Sherry Oak from Spain and America. Beginning with a leathery oak and dried fruit nose, the journey finishes with a velvety palate, and endless depth of thick smokey spices. As dramatic as it is mature, The Macallan 25 represents one of the finest in the world.

GREEN CHARTREUSE VEP

Hailing from the Chartreuse Mountains of Grenoble, France, this Chartreuse recipe is known only by the Carthusian Monks, passed down from 1737. This unique, ancient blend of French herbs and botanicals transform the classic Chartreuse into this extraordinary bright green cordial.
